

Roland Krieg

Born 1962 in Troisdorf-Spich (Rhineland), he started with the basic studies for agriculture at the Justus-Liebig-University in Giessen after his high school graduation in 1983 and then finished his main studies in International Agricultural Sciences (M. Sc.) at the TU Berlin. Before university and in between Giessen and Berlin, for three years he collected practical experience at several agricultural businesses (dairy cattle, winter vegetables, cultivation, sow keeping) in the Rhineland, in Thailand and Ireland.

End of the 1990ties his passion for writing led him to found a publishing house for agriculture and nutrition and build the online magazine "Herd-und-Hof.de" (hearth-and-farm). Furthermore he is a free author i.a. for the "Vieh und Fleisch Handelszeitung" (Cattle and Meat Trade Journal) and for the "Entwicklungsmagazin" (development magazine) rural21.com.

Roland Krieg is a member of the German Agricultural Journalist Association (VDAJ) and member of the Friends of the Science Press conference (wpk).
